Travis County Fire Marshal Sworn in for Second Term

TRAVIS COUNTY, Texas – Travis County Fire Marshal, Tony Callaway today begins his second term after being sworn into office by County Judge, Sarah Eckhardt. In January, the Fire Marshal was unanimously reappointed by Commissioners Court to another two-year term.

“It is an honor to work for such a supportive and forward-thinking Commissioners Court,” said Tony Callaway, Travis County Fire Marshal. “Our team at the Fire Marshal’s Office remains committed to building and maintaining strong partnerships with our regional emergency service agencies. We will continuously work to deliver the highest levels of service and protection to the great people of Travis County. Protecting Travis County is both my mission and my greatest honor.”

“I want to thank Tony Callaway for his service as Travis County Fire Marshal and congratulate him on his reappointment,” said Sarah Eckhardt, Travis County Judge. “There is no doubt Tony’s work ethic and experience make him an invaluable resource to the people of Travis County.”

Callaway began his career in 1997 as a firefighter with the Killeen Fire Department, and was quickly promoted to the Fire Prevention/Arson Division. In 2001, he was hired as a Division Chief with the Cedar Park Fire Department serving in role as both the Fire Marshal and Emergency Management Coordinator for the City of Cedar Park. In 2005, Callaway joined the Travis County Fire Marshal’s Office as a Deputy Chief Fire Marshal.
